Top Three Reasons to Provide Your Users with Remote PC Access

Explore the benefits of the Remote PC feature included in Citrix Virtual Apps and Desktops.

Users want a consistent and seamless experience wherever they work—without dealing with cumbersome logons, restarts, or a different visual experience across devices. If you haven't yet rolled out the Remote PC feature in your Citrix Virtual Apps and Desktops solution, here are three great reasons to do so.

1. Employees can maximize their productivity when working remotely

People can do their best work more easily when they're provided with a familiar environment. You've already made it possible for remote users to access their corporate apps and data, but what about the in-office experience and workflow that help them become fully productive? With Remote PC, users can log on to their desktop PCs in seconds from anywhere to access all the functionality and personalization they've come to depend on in the office. Citrix HDX ensures a high-quality experience in any scenario, and users can even work offline. That means they can be fully mobile without having to carry around a heavy laptop for the ultimate in anywhere, anytime productivity.

2. IT can improve both efficiency and security

Remote PC provides a fast, simple way to enable an in-office experience wherever people work—without introducing security risks. Scripts automate provisioning and secure configuration on every endpoint in your organization without the need to deploy software device-by-device. The time you save can free you for more value-added tasks.

3. Your organization can achieve higher ROI for your Citrix investment

Helping both users and IT become more productive provides an immediate increase in ROI. Even better, because Remote PC is already part of your Citrix Virtual Apps and Desktops solution, you can achieve this improvement without additional licensing fees. That means you can meet users' needs more effectively without spending more.

Provide the best of both worlds

Employees want to have it all: the robust functionality, familiar environment, and productivity-enhancing personalization of their desktop PC, with the mobility to work anywhere, on any device. With Remote PC, you can meet their expectations easily—using your existing Citrix solution. Users are more productive and satisfied, IT becomes more efficient and secure, and the business gets a bottom-line boost. It's a great way to get even more value from Citrix Virtual Apps and Desktops.
